

Stony Brook
University

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

AP Photo/Steve Helber

“How Do We Decide?: Monuments in the Era of Black Lives Matter”

How do we strike a balance between tearing monuments down and leaving them up? Join us for a roundtable discussion focusing on the role of monuments in our national identity. Which monuments should come down? Which should stay up? What kind of alternative possibilities can we envision for calling out controversial figures who nevertheless remain integral to the American story? How do we decide?

Wednesday, October 28, 2020

1:00 pm – 2:20 pm

Registration via Zoom

Panelists:

Robert Chase

Associate Professor

Department of History

Zebulon Miletksy

Associate Professor

Department of Africana Studies

Peter Salins

Professor

Department of Political Science

Moderated by:

Eric Zolov

Professor

Department of History

Welcome Remarks:

Nicole S. Sampson

Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and
SUNY Distinguished
Professor of Chemistry